Since 1924, The New York Community Trust has helped make donors' charitable dreams come true by funding the non-profits that make our city a vital and secure place in which to live and work. We ended 2007 with assets of $2.1 billion in nearly 2,000 charitable funds, and made grants totaling $166 million. Whether you're giving today, or endowing a fund to support a cause or solve problems we can't now imagine, The Trust makes it easy to be a philanthropist. We invite you to learn about us and how to join our family of donors.

It has been said often that New York City is a city of immigrants. For many immigrants, the first sight of our shores was the Statue of Liberty—a symbol of freedom that for decades has been featured on the covers of our annual reports. This annual report focuses on immigrants' contributions to the City's arts and cultural scene.

The primary sources of funding for these grants were The Trust's unrestricted and field-of-interest funds, each of which provides The Trust with flexibility in its grantmaking. Under these arrangements, a donor creates a permanent endowment fund—either during lifetime or by will—and grants The Trust authority to select the charitable organizations to receive grants each year. If the donor wishes to do so, he or she can specify that The Trust select charitable organizations within a particular field of interest, such as education, health care, or the environment.

By creating an unrestricted or field-of-interest fund, a donor is assured that, notwithstanding changing circumstances that inevitably occur over time, the grants from the donor's fund will always be used to meet vital needs of our City and support charitable organizations addressing those needs most effectively.

An equally important aspect of our grant program is The Trust's donor-advised funds, which also provided support for the grants listed in this Annual Report. Many of our donor-advisors have also created permanent unrestricted or field-of-interest funds at The Trust as a means of fulfilling a long-range philanthropic goal or estate planning objective.

Once again, I want to pay a special tribute to our outstanding staff at The Trust and to our remarkable president, Lorie Slutsky. They are truly The Trust's most valuable assets!

SAMUEL S. POLK

This will be The Trust's third annual report in 30 years that focuses on immigration.

The first, in 1987, celebrated the passage in 1986 of a comprehensive immigration law that offered amnesty to 4 million undocumented immigrants—and was the impetus for our Fund for New Citizens,* a group of funders who pool their resources to help the City's immigrant communities.

It is one of several such joint efforts that The Trust manages, allowing funders to focus together on specific goals and target money to a defined area of concern.

The second report, in 1997, highlighted another immigration law, enacted in 1996, that imposed harsh restrictions on asylum seekers, curtailed due process protections for individuals in deportation hearings, and required reporting that overturned long-standing City confidentiality policies. But, we noted then, the Fund for New Citizens was still in business, providing support to the many small immigrant service organizations we had helped over the decade, including now-sophisticated nonprofits that offered legal, policy, and advocacy advice.

Today, there is no new legislation. Efforts to confront both the plight of the country's undocumented immigrants and our need for border security dissolved last year under the weight of an ugly and shrill debate. So even though New York has a grand history of being a welcoming place for newcomers, we thought it was a good time to report on immigrants' contributions to the City. We chose to look at the arts, a sector that is not only a large and important part of our economy, but one that adds to the color, texture, and vibrancy that make New York New York.

The Fund for New Citizens is still making grants to help newcomers to the City, with a focus on strengthening immigrant groups, and on naturalization and other legal services for immigrants. In part because of the Fund's work, The Trust can use other funds given to us by generous New Yorkers to support arts organizations that showcase and nurture immigrant artists. It's but one example of how donors can use The Trust to multiply the impact of their gifts. I hope you'll be inspired by reading about the nonprofits we collectively support, and find out more about us.

The well-being of the City's immigrants, who continue the long tradition of reinvigorating our neighborhoods, our economy, and our culture, has been a Trust priority for many years. In addition to the Fund for New Citizens (see page 3), we have supported nonprofits that help newcomers learn English and adapt to City life, protect their rights and access to services, and combat bias, and in 2007 made $2.9 million in grants for programs that help immigrants. Our grants to nurture immigrant arts and culture are one part of our commitment to the City's diversity and vitality.

A mural from Making It Together, a Bronx Museum of the Arts exhibition inspired by the 1970s Feminist Movement.

What do Derek Walcott, Frank McCourt, Edwidge Danticat, Zubin Mehta, Carlos Santana, Yo-Yo Ma, and Claus Oldenburg have in common?

Well, besides their talent, they are all immigrants. No one would question their extraordinarily rich contributions to American arts and culture. But how would we treat them if they arrived today?

Americans—both native and naturalized—are clear that immigration reform is badly needed: We can't allow unfettered entry and we need to do something about the uncertain status of the estimated 11 million undocumented immigrants who are already here, many of whom are exploited and living in fear. Unfortunately, the debate over how to deal with both issues is volatile and uncivil.

But as Time noted in 1993, when another debate over immigration was heating up, "Too complicated and diffuse to be described as a melting pot . . . society today is really a collection of intertwining subcultures, each contributing its own character to the nation's life—from food to fashion, from art to politics—while retaining its distinctiveness."

Nowhere is that description more apt than in New York City, where citizens and city government have long welcomed newcomers. A recent report by the Fiscal Policy Institute, funded in part by The Trust, examined the role of immigrants—defined as residents born in another country regardless of their legal status—and documented what most of us know: despite problems, they have been major contributors to the City's growth and vibrancy. They have revitalized neighborhoods, added to our middle class, started new businesses.

Immigrants make up 87 percent of all

New York cabbies and 48 percent of our doctors; 62 percent of child care workers and 36 percent of college professors; 79 percent of chefs and head cooks and 59 percent of computer programmers; and they are majorities in other occupations, including home health aides and housekeepers.

And they are artists. When the City celebrated the Fourth Annual Immigrant History Week last April (funded in part by The Trust), 39 of the 53 free programs were dedicated to immigrant arts, from poetry of the west Balkans to the music and dance of Bangladesh, from exhibits that look at New York through the eyes of African artists to reflections of Mexican artists on both sides of the border. Grab your passport to the arts and read about the work of a few nonprofits supported by The Trust that nurture and promote immigrant artists—and enrich us culturally, economically, and spiritually.

The Bronx is Up . . .

It was the first professional theater in the Bronx, founded 27 years ago—when the crack epidemic was devastating poor neighborhoods, a subway strike was making life miserable for commuters, and the governor was warning of a new fiscal crisis. Since then, the Lehman Center for the Performing Arts has been bringing music, theater, and dance to its diverse community. With a schedule of international and national artists and companies, as well as Bronx performers, the Center attracts more and more local residents, many of whom come from Latin America, Eastern Europe, Asia, Ireland, and the Caribbean. The 2007/2008 season began with a Bronx Week tribute to Latin musician Roberta Ruena and included Ballet Folklórico de Mexico, Tango Buenos Aires from Argentina, the St. Petersburg Ballet from Russia, and African Footprint from South Africa. Eva Bornstein, the Center's executive director, talks about African Footprint.

African Footprint was a breathtaking blend of Afro- and Euro-centric music and dance. The audience, including many young families seeing live African dance for the first time, marveled at the energy and integrity of the production, which consisted of racially diverse South African performers. The event went beyond entertainment, with audience and performers sharing an experience filled with love, hope, and respect. The standing ovation came straight from the heart and was nothing short of spectacular.

Four miles south sits the borough's fine arts museum. The Bronx Museum of the Arts' permanent collection of 800 works reflects its commitment to acquire, study, and preserve 20th century and contemporary art by African-American, Latino, and Asian-American artists. In 2000, the Museum began collecting works by important Bronx artists. Its annual Artist in the Marketplace is a 12-week course in career management for emerging artists from the metropolitan area, which ends with a group show at the Museum. With the opening of a new City-funded wing in 2006, it doubled its exhibition and classroom space, and is poised to attract more visitors—and donors. But the Museum's commitment to the borough is steadfast. Here's what its executive director, Holly Block, says.

The Bronx community serves as a vibrant nexus, where groups of various ethnicities and immigrants converge to bring fresh perspectives and contribute to the vitality of New York. The Bronx encompasses enormous cultural diversity and a rich history of urban planning, immigration, music, fashion, and dynamic street cultures; it is acknowledged as the birthplace of hip-hop culture and central to the graffiti movement. This energy has informed the Museum's programmatic approach for the last three decades and serves a crucial role in enhancing the social and cultural fabric of the City.

And the Battery's Down . . .

Cross the Harlem River to Manhattan and you will find the Asian American Writers' Workshop. It was started in 1991 as an informal gathering of a handful of writers who met regularly to read and critique each other's work (legend has it that they first met in a Greek diner). It is now one of the largest Asian literary organizations in the country, and the only one in New York City that reaches all segments of the Asian-American community. Its programs include readings and other public literary presentations as well as publishing, a reading center, educational activities, and writing workshops. In 2001, the organization relocated from a small, basement office to a large loft space on West 32nd Street that enables it to serve a greater number of writers and accommodate a larger audience. Ken Chen, the Workshop's executive director, describes how his group inspires.

The Workshop plays a unique role by presenting a diverse group of writers to audiences of all races and ages. And our programs—including youth workshops, creative writing classes, and writing fellowships—empower people by showing them how they, too, can be writers. We frequently collaborate with other groups to create a dialogue between groups of different ethnicities. In this way we involve the community in a literature that runs across cultures.

In 2007, the Workshop offered readings by Asian-American and African-American poets with Cave Canem, a nonprofit that supports black writers; a reading of a new play in concert with Subjective Theater, a Brooklyn company that presents plays challenging existing notions of race; and held its 10th Annual Asian American Literary Awards at the Asia Society.

Take the First Exit in Brooklyn . . .

Head into DUMBO, and you might feel you're in the middle of a construction site. A neighborhood of artists and artisans since the 70s, it's got new caché, with the lofts built by the shippers and manufacturers of this once industrial area transforming into condos, chic restaurants, and small boutiques. Turn toward the river on Front Street, whose buildings frame the Brooklyn Bridge. The Brooklyn Arts Council started there in 1966, nurturing its artists and designers. It offers money, technical support, and presenting opportunities for the borough's cultural organizations and individual artists, and stages free music, dance, film, and visual arts events. It also sends artists into borough schools. Ella Weiss, the Arts Council's president, describes how it has responded to the increasing numbers of artists from all over the world who are flocking to Brooklyn.

Traditional arts play a vital role in our city by helping multi-generational families stay connected to their heritage while becoming Americans; they enrich our culture and they give us all new perspective on the meaning of neighbors and community. Our Folk Arts program identifies and presents traditional artists living in Brooklyn. One of its most successful and important projects is Folk Feet, which we started in 2003. We've discovered that many of the dancers are unfortunately very much underserved. So we've created a year-round calendar of performance, symposia, and workshops to help these dancers sustain their work and share it with wider audiences.

Since it launched, Folk Feet has identified 175 individual dancers and dance groups representing more than 60 different cultural traditions. It has documented and presented ceremonial dance from Senegal and Mali; Norwegian partner dances; Haitian kombit; Indian Odissi; Dominican Pri-Pri; Mexican norteco; Ukrainian Cossack; Panamanian tamborito; Yemenite bara'a; Nepalese Sherpa sherbru; Korean poongmul; Irish step; dance djouanigbe from Ivory Coast; Bangladeshi baowl; Polish polka; and many, many more.

And Then Head into Queens

Named after Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, who united and inspired generations of immigrants, the LaGuardia Performing Arts Center is a major program of another of the City's institutions that thrives because of immigrants—LaGuardia Community College. Its western Queens community includes first- and second-generation Americans from 159 countries who speak 119 languages. When it started, the Arts Center’s focus was on introducing elementary and middle school children to the performing arts. The Center had little connection to the students and faculty of the College, and, according to its managing director, Steven Hitt, “People living within 10 blocks of the College did not know about the campus.” But Hitt and his colleagues have redefined their mission.

We’re a bridge between the College and the community. While developers boast of Long Island City’s proximity to mid-town Manhattan, many residents find Manhattan’s cultural offerings out of reach. The Arts Center brings people together through the shared experience of the arts, and presents culturally and ethnically diverse programs of the highest quality at affordable prices.

The Center’s offerings have included an Argentine dance company; the Immigrant Theater Project’s films and plays, such as Nickled and Dimed and Queensbridge, that advocate for social change; sitar virtuoso Anoushka Shankar, and Queens artists like Michiyo Tanaka, a Japanese immigrant, and her company, MAD About Dance. And the LaGuardia Arts Center is still running a school-time series for kids.

Follow the #7 train and you’ll be in Flushing Meadow Park. In a building designed by Philip Johnson as part of the New York State Pavilion for the 1964 World’s Fair, the Queens Theatre in the Park presents or produces more than 400 theater and dance performances each year on its two stages, as well as movies and concerts, all at affordable prices. Among its wide variety of presentations, which have included the Acting Company’s Macbeth, Ballet Hispanico, and the Paul Taylor Dance Company, the Theatre offers the Latino Cultural Series and Festival, the Black Cultural Arts Series, the Asian Cultural Initiative, and the Immigrant Voices Play Reading Project. Much of the Theatre’s growth is the result of its efforts to meet the opportunities and challenges of being a cultural institution in an ethnically diverse borough. Jeffrey Rosenstock, the Theatre’s executive director, explains.

Queens continues to embody many of the international ideas espoused by the World’s Fairs it hosted in 1939 and 1964. The success of the Theatre has been in seeking out, nurturing, and developing artists whose voices reflect the extraordinary diversity of our community. We invite and embrace audiences of different cultures to discover a sense of shared community in a local place of public assembly. By presenting and producing works by emerging artists of many backgrounds, the Theatre continues to carry forth the promise of the World’s Fair.

And the Tour is Just Beginning

The stops we’ve made in four of the five boroughs are but a few of the arts organizations in an overflowing cornucopia that knits us together and lifts our spirits. And we haven’t visited Staten Island, which houses, among others, the Jacques Marchais Museum of Tibetan Arts and the Chinese Scholar’s Garden. We urge you to discover—and support—the abundance of truly international artists all over the City who not only introduce us to old traditions, but also interpret them in a uniquely American way.

The congo, a traditional Panamanian dance, is performed by a Brooklyn dance troupe, presented by the Brooklyn Arts Council.

To get a full flavor of our grantmaking, we've given thumbnail sketches of selected grants in each of our program areas. We urge you to read our grants newsletter, issued five times a year, for a full view of our grants program.

Traditional dancer Cliff Matias performs a Native American hoop dance at Folk Feet Circle 'Round Brooklyn at The Tobacco Warehouse in Brooklyn Bridge Park in 2007.

The Trust makes grants in four general areas:

Children, Youth, & Families; Community

Development and the Environment; Education, Arts, & the Humanities; and Health and People with Special Needs. We are committed to sticking with significant issues that may not lend themselves to quick or easy solutions, while remaining open to projects that tackle emerging problems and to organizations that may be new to us.

Grants are made primarily to nonprofit organizations located in the five boroughs of New York City. Our suburban divisions handle grants on Long Island and in Westchester (page 34). Grants to programs outside our area generally are from funds designated for specific charities or that have been made at the suggestion of donors.

Applicants should begin by requesting “Guidelines for Grant Applicants” and one or more of the four brochures that describe in detail each of our grantmaking areas. We also suggest that you request copies of our grants newsletter, published five times a year, to get a sense of the kinds of projects we currently fund. Please call our receptionist at (212) 686-0010, ext. 0, or visit our Web site, www.nycommunitytrust.org.

If, after you have read our guidelines, you believe that your proposed project meets our criteria, send us a cover letter along with a completed application form (enclosed with the guidelines), and a copy of the proposal—not more than 10 pages plus appendices. Include in your letter a brief summary of the proposal, the amount requested, and the results expected. We do not accept proposals sent by fax or e-mail.

Please note that we don’t make grants to individuals and rarely for endowments, building campaigns, deficit financing, films, general operating support, or religious purposes.

We have no specific submission deadlines. Our Distribution Committee meets to consider grants five times annually, and grant applications are accepted throughout the year.

We’ll let you know within two weeks that we have received your material. During the review process, Trust staff will analyze your proposal, determine if and how it fits into our grantmaking program, and check to see if there is adequate money available in an appropriate fund. We’ll get in touch with you if we have further questions or need more information.

The Trust welcomes your application, but because we can’t fund every proposal submitted to us, we urge you to send yours to several other funders as well.

The New York Community Trust offers donors with every kind of philanthropic interest an easy and flexible way to accomplish their charitable objectives and receive the maximum tax deduction allowed by law.

Types of Funds

An unrestricted fund is a good option for donors who want to be assured that their gift will always be used to meet vital needs and improve the quality of life in New York City. Our staff is expert in identifying community needs and the nonprofits best equipped to meet them.

In a field-of-interest fund, charitable giving is focused on issues of concern to the donor, such as child and family welfare, youth, education, human justice, conservation, or health policy. The Trust makes grants that meet current needs in the chosen fields. Field-of-interest funds can also be established to be advised by the donor.

A donor-advised fund is an unrestricted fund legally, but the donor recommends the organizations to receive grants. Although we cannot, by law, be bound by these recommendations, we take them very seriously and approve grants to recommended nonprofits that meet charitable standards for programmatic and financial soundness.

A designated fund is for donors who want to support specific organizations but recognize that the world may change. They establish a designated fund in The Trust rather than leave it directly to the charity to assure that their gift remains relevant over time and responsive to changing circumstances. (See page 22 for an explanation of the variance power.)

Setting up the Fund

Each donor establishes a fund with a minimum of $5,000. Donors first decide what they want to accomplish with their philanthropy; our staff is happy to help clarify and refine goals. They then choose the name of the fund, typically using their own names or the names of individuals to be honored or memorialized. Donors who prefer anonymity can choose a general name.

There are at least three ways to establish a fund with us.

Give Now: You can set up a fund to support charities during your lifetime and endow it to continue your philanthropy for future generations. Many of our donors regularly add money to the funds they have established.

Give Later: Donors can set up funds through deferred-giving arrangements. A key feature of many estate plans is a tax advantage to you now for the commitment of a charitable gift later. Charitable Remainder Trusts, Charitable Lead Trusts, and gifts of life insurance or retirement plan assets can all be used.

Wills: After providing for personal bequests, you may include provisions for setting up a fund with us or adding to one you already have here. You will save estate taxes and ensure that the charitable work you care about will be continued.

Barbara Paul Robinson and Charles Raskob Robinson

Barbara Paul Robinson

“As a Trusts and Estates partner at Debevoise & Plimpton LLP for many years, I have advised many individual clients about their philanthropic commitments and have also served as counsel to many of my firm’s foundation clients. Whenever a client asked me about establishing a private foundation, I always urged them to consider using The New York Community Trust instead. Creating a donor-advised fund is easy, efficient, and inexpensive. It offers an instant opportunity to create a charitable fund but without all the red tape and delay entailed by founding a separate entity and seeking to qualify as tax exempt with the Internal Revenue Service. The New York Community Trust provides all the administrative support needed, connecting each donor to the deep resources and expertise of its outstanding staff. I wisely followed my own advice when my husband, Charles Raskob Robinson, and I set up a donor-advised fund of our own.

Each December, I decide how much I wish to commit to charitable purposes and make a single gift of appreciated securities to the donor-advised fund we established at the NYCT. I also qualify for matching funds from other sources, which can also go directly in this donor-advised fund in a single payment. After I make my annual gift, I can, with the luxury of time, recommend grants from my donor-advised fund to various charitable organizations I would like to support. I know I can rely on the due diligence of the NYCT staff to insure each recommended donee organization continues to be well run and qualified. Recently, a grant I recommended to a small organization was rejected by the staff because of important concerns raised about that potential grantee’s governance structure. I was very impressed.

In the future, when my husband and I are gone, we know that our fund will continue to be available for recommendations made by our children and grandchildren. It will be a wonderful legacy.”

To thank Ms. Robinson for pro bono work she had done, the Appalachian College Association set up a scholarship in her name. It goes to an outstanding student who intends to pursue a legal career and then work in the region. Grants from the Barbara Paul Robinson and Charles Raskob Robinson Fund contribute to the program.

Smoky Mountain National Park

Types of Assets

Funds may be established with the following: cash, securities traded on major exchanges, closely held stock, mutual fund shares, retirement plan assets, real estate, interests in limited partnerships, and literature copyrights. In 2007, the IRA charitable rollover provision of the 2006 Pension Protection Act expired. This allowed individuals 70½ and older to contribute up to $100,000 from their IRAs directly to charity without paying income tax on the distribution. Legislation to extend the provision may be introduced in 2008.

We are glad to discuss proposed contributions with you. We cannot accept assets that are not readily convertible for the financial benefit of charity or that carry unusual potential liability.

Fund Administration and Fees

A fund established with our organization may be held in trust with one of our 12 trustee banks (see page 38), or it may be held by Community Funds, Inc., our not-for-profit corporation. Both operate as The New York Community Trust with a single governing body. If a fund is set up in trust, the bank handles the investments. If it is set up in Community Funds, our distinguished Investment Committee oversees the performance of the outside portfolio managers it selects. The determining factor is the inclination of the donor. The service we provide is the same.

The administrative fee charged to our funds is competitive. Please visit our Web site, www.nycommunitytrust.org, How to Start Giving, to see our current fee.

Funds that are held in trust are also charged a trustee's fee set by the bank. It may be negotiated between the bank and the donor at the inception of the fund, and varies from bank to bank and with the size of the fund.

The Internal Revenue Service has classified The New York Community Trust and its affiliate, Community Funds, Inc., as “tax exempt” under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code; as a “publicly supported” organization under Section 170b(1)(A)(vi); and as “not a private foundation” under Section 509(a)(1). This status ensures donors the maximum tax benefit allowed by law. The Long Island Community Foundation and the Westchester Community Foundation (described on page 34) are divisions of Community Funds.

A Fund in The Trust, a Private Foundation, or Both?

A fund in The Trust provides a very attractive alternative to establishing a private foundation. We are a public charity with the attendant tax advantages. A full-time professional staff takes care of all the administrative and grantmaking activities, eliminating the need to set up a separate institution, formulate policies, file innumerable forms, and monitor the status of grant recipients. Establishing a private foundation can take months and be costly; with The Trust, the legal apparatus is already in place, and creating a fund can take less than a day.

For some people, a private foundation is the preferred option, but many donors with private foundations also have funds with us. Often, the donor uses a fund here to support causes and nonprofits that are outside the general focus of the private foundation. And almost all want to increase the impact of their philanthropy by

"In the 1890s my immigrant grandparents were welcomed by New York City and raised seven children in a tenement on the Lower East Side. My first-generation parents attended public schools and learned social and technical skills in settlement houses.

Stanley's parents emigrated from Russia in the 1920s. They attended 'night schools' and learned English. His father first collected garbage in a fruit market and became a successful merchant.

I, too, have been very fortunate to have been born, educated, and nurtured by New York City's institutions. I paid no tuition for diplomas from PS6 through Hunter High, Hunter College and Graduate School. The New York Public Library, the local 'Y' and the museums all contributed to my creative and intellectual life.

Stanley and I are committed to ensure that others will have the same opportunities. We have chosen the NYCT as a way to repay our debt. We could never do it alone with a private fund. The Trust makes it easy for us to accomplish our goals, takes care of all the details, and makes valuable suggestions."

Judith and Stanley Zabar

Below are a few of the nonprofits supported in 2007 by the Judith and Stanley Zabar Fund:

- Hunter College for scholarship programs, an oral history project, and a new art library and program for visiting artists.
- Lenox Hill Neighborhood House, which continues the legacy of the NY Settlement House—senior citizen programs, homeless outreach, after-school programs, and summer day camp.
- Eldridge St. Project (now the Eldridge St. Museum), the first Eastern European synagogue in the U.S., which provides educational materials relating to the immigrant experience to public and private school students.
- C-Cap (Careers in the Culinary Arts), an organization that develops professional competence and gives scholarships for advanced training to inner-city students in the public high schools' Food Service Programs.
- Symphony Space, which presents West Side dance, theater, and films at moderate prices, for its public school programs in writing and music.
- The New York Public Library, President's Council, for innovative programs.
- The Metropolitan Museum of Art, Friends of the American Wing.

joining other generous New Yorkers who care about the City.

We also offer substantial advantages over most commercial donor-advised funds: in-depth knowledge of the nonprofit community, the capacity to accept unusual gifts, smaller minimums, and lower fees. Because our business is philanthropy, we can help make sure that your money makes a difference.

Further Information

The New York Community Trust is happy to work with you or with your lawyer, trust officer, or other financial advisor.

We invite you to get in touch with us at any time. Call our general counsel Jane L. Wilton (Ext. 379), Robert V. Edgar (Ext. 373), or Gay Young (Ext. 377) in our Donor Relations Department at 212-686-0010.

Establishing a fund in The New York Community Trust for your client is a relatively straightforward process. Our comprehensive booklet, Creating a Fund Here: Suggested Words and Procedures, provides all the relevant information: The Trust's tax classification letter, descriptive material on the different types of funds, and suggested language to help you draft instruments to provide for gifts to your organization. Call us to receive a copy.

Three Important Facts

We are unable to accept a fund unless its terms have been reviewed by us and found acceptable. It is particularly helpful if we review the language before the instrument is executed to ensure that we can meet the donor's charitable purpose.

For funds held in trust as part of The New York Community Trust, a co-trustee is not permitted.

All our funds enjoy an important advantage: If a change of circumstances makes literal compliance with the terms of the gift instrument "unnecessary, undesirable, impractical, or impossible," our governing body is able to vary them. This is called the variance power. Donors are assured that their gifts will never become obsolete; they will remain useful to the community in perpetuity.

Donors have the option of setting up funds in The New York Community Trust with a bank as trustee or in our not-for-profit corporate affiliate, Community Funds, Inc. The organizations share a governing board and file a single tax return with the IRS.

Creating a Fund in The New York Community Trust

The Resolution and Declaration of Trust Creating "The New York Community Trust" (the R&D) is a complete trust instrument. It sets out in detail the powers and duties of the Trustee Bank and the Distribution Committee. In order to establish a fund in The New York Community Trust, the founding document—whether for a bequest or a gift during lifetime—must incorporate the R&D by reference.

An advantage of The New York Community Trust is that it is not a private foundation subject to certain requirements, and the separate funds that constitute The New York Community Trust are component funds of a public charity, not private foundations. It is important, therefore, that an instrument designed to create a new component fund in The New York Community Trust adhere strictly to the provisions of the R&D; please call us for a copy.

Creating a Fund in Community Funds, Inc.

Community Funds, Inc. is a New York State not-for-profit corporation. As with a fund in The New York Community Trust, a fund established in Community Funds becomes part of a publicly supported organization, and is not regarded as a private foundation. The fund is held and administered pursuant to the provisions of the Not-for-Profit Corporation Law. Please call us for a copy of the Certificate of Incorporation and By-Laws of Community Funds.

Creating a Fund in our Long Island or Westchester Division

Because the Long Island Community Foundation and the Westchester Community Foundation are divisions of Community Funds, donors have the same options described above.

Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements

(1) Organization

The New York Community Trust and Community Funds, Inc. (including its Long Island and Westchester Divisions) are community foundations created to build permanent charitable endowments for the areas they serve. The Trust, as the consolidated foundations are hereinafter referred to, is tax-exempt under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code (the Code) and has been determined not to be a private foundation under Section 509(a)(1) of the Code. The Trust administers nearly 2,000 individual charitable funds, each established with an instrument of gift describing either the general or specific purposes for which grants are to be made, usually from income only, but in some cases from principal.

(2) Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Accounting standards provide that if the governing body of an organization has the ability to remove a donor restriction, the contributions should be classified as unrestricted net assets. However, under New York State law and The Trust's governing instruments, the assets are held as endowment funds until such time (if ever) as the governing body deems it prudent and appropriate to expend some part of the principal or appreciation. Accordingly, the consolidated financial statements classify all net assets as unrestricted, except for those net assets restricted for the September 11th Fund, but segregate the portion that is held as endowment from the funds that are currently available for grants and administration.

Cash equivalents represent short-term investments with original maturities of 90 days or less, except for those short-term investments managed as part of long-term investment strategies.

Fixed assets are recorded at cost and are depreciated on a straight-line basis over the estimated life of the respective asset. Leasehold improvements are depreciated over the life of the respective improvement or the remaining term of the lease, whichever is shorter. Fixed assets are reported net of accumulated depreciation of $1,107,366 in 2007 and $821,779 in 2006.

Investment expenses include fees for bank trustees, investment managers, and custodians.

Grants and services to beneficiaries are expensed upon approval of the Distribution Committee of The New York Community Trust (NYCT) or the Board of Directors of Community Funds, Inc. (CFI), and usually paid within one year.

Accounting estimates are an integral part of the consolidated financial statements prepared by management and are based upon management's current judgments. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Certain 2006 amounts have been reclassified to conform to the 2007 presentation.

(3) Investments

Most of The Trust's investments are in publicly traded securities or in common trust funds and commingled funds that are invested in publicly traded securities. Fair value for these investments is based on quoted market prices and published net asset values. For other investments, fair value is determined based upon information provided by the fund managers, which is reviewed for reasonableness, and other valuation techniques.

The investments of NYCT are held in individual trusts at the bank designated by the donor in the instrument of gift. CFI invests for long-term growth of principal and income in real terms, consistent with a reasonable degree of risk. Donor advised funds that require a high degree of liquidity are invested in cash equivalents. The breakdown is as follows:

	NYCT	CFI	2007 Total	2006 Total
U.S. large cap equities	$ 369,796,097	$ 235,623,130	$ 605,419,227	$ 577,050,461

Certain of The Trust's investments in private equity and real estate involve future cash commitments. These future cash commitments amount to approximately $66.2 million at December 31, 2007.

As of December 31, 2007 and 2006, 90.3 % and 92.7 % of investments, respectively, were readily marketable.

(4) Pension and Postretirement Medical Benefit Plans

The Trust administers a noncontributory defined benefit pension plan covering substantially all employees. Benefits are based on years of service and the employee's compensation during the five highest consecutive years during the last ten years of employment. The Trust also provides medical insurance benefits for its eligible retired employees.

Effective December 31, 2007, The Trust adopted Financial Accounting Standards Board Statement (SFAS) No. 158, Employers' Accounting for Defined Benefit Pension and Other Postretirement Plans. Obligations and funded status at December 31 are as follows:

	Pension benefits		Other benefits
	2007	2006	2007	2006
Benefit obligation	$ 12,312,451	$ 11,699,125	$ 2,440,927	$ 2,871,553
Fair value of plan assets	14,652,831	13,088,571	—	—
Funded status	$ 2,340,380	$ 1,389,446	$ (2,440,927)	$ (2,871,553)
Benefit costs	$ 248,727	$ 402,130	$ 285,812	$ 353,716
Benefits paid	$ 287,915	$ 268,864	$ 50,945	$ 57,022
Plan contribution	$ 821,570	—	—	—

Amounts recognized in the statement of financial position related to the effect of adoption of SFAS No. 158 for the year ended December 31, 2007 consist of a decrease to the pension asset of $1,067,203 and an increase to the accrued postretirement benefit obligation of $545,353. The incremental effect of applying SFAS No. 158 is a decrease to unrestricted net assets of $1,612,556.

The discount rates used to value the pension and other benefit plans range from 5.75% to 6.0%. The weighted average expected return on plan assets and rate of compensation increase for the calculation of the pension benefits is 8% and 4% as of December 31, 2007. The health care cost trend rate assumption for 2008 is 8.0% declining each year to 5% in 2014.

The pension plan is invested in a balanced portfolio of equity and fixed income securities. Annual projected benefit payments for the pension and other benefit plans are expected to average $618,000 and $96,000, through 2017, respectively.

The Trust also sponsors a defined contribution retirement plan for employees, in which contributions are based upon a specified percentage of salaries. The expense for this retirement plan was $478,659 and $453,114 in 2007 and 2006, respectively.

(5) Commitments

On March 30, 2004, The Trust entered into a lease agreement for office space expiring March 31, 2020. Future minimum rental payments are approximately $1.2 million in 2008 through 2009, $1.3 million in 2010 through 2012, and a total of $10.4 million thereafter through 2020.

Rental expense is recognized on a straight-line basis, in accordance with SFAS No. 13, Accounting for Leases. The excess of recognized expense over actual rent payments as well as landlord provided improvements has been recorded as deferred rent credits. Rent expense for the years ended December 31, 2007 and 2006 amounted to $1,246,411 and $1,321,171, respectively.

independent auditors' report

Distribution Committee of The New York Community Trust and Board of Directors of Community Funds, Inc.:

We have audited the accompanying consolidated statements of financial position of The New York Community Trust and Community Funds, Inc., including its Long Island and Westchester Divisions (collectively, The Trust), as of December 31, 2007 and 2006, and the related consolidated statements of activities and cash flows for the years then ended. These consolidated financial statements are the responsibility of The Trust's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these consolidated financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes consideration of internal control over financial reporting as a basis for designing audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of The Trust's internal control over financial reporting. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements, assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the consolidated financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of The New York Community Trust and Community Funds, Inc. (including its Long Island and Westchester Divisions) as of December 31, 2007 and 2006, and the changes in their net assets and their cash flows for the years then ended in conformity with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles.

suburban divisions

With the belief that grantmaking is most effective when it is done locally, The Trust established divisions that reach out to the greater metropolitan area: the Westchester Community Foundation, founded in 1975, and the Long Island Community Foundation, founded in 1978.

Each is guided by a board of advisors composed of local community leaders and staffed by people expert in grantmaking and donor service. As part of The Trust, Long Island and Westchester enjoy our investment management, legal, financial, and accounting services.

For donors who wish to contribute to charities in these communities, our suburban divisions combine sensitivity to local concerns with the economies of scale and expertise of a large organization.

Funds in each division are listed on the following two pages.

The East End Arts & Humanities Council provides scholarships for needy school-aged musicians on Long Island.

The Mamaroneck Artists' Guild runs Artistico, a program that teaches painting and jewelry making to immigrant artisans, such as the two pictured here at an exhibition.

In 1923, the banks of New York City envisioned the type of philanthropic organization that could best meet the changing needs of this community.

It would be set up to give wealthy people and those of moderate means an equal opportunity to accomplish their philanthropy within a flexible framework. The charitable funds they created would be permanently secure. The organization's governing body—an impartial and changing committee of New York citizens chosen for their understanding of philanthropic needs—would oversee the selection of charitable beneficiaries.

This was the beginning of The New York Community Trust. Today twelve banks and trust companies have adopted the “Resolution and Declaration of Trust Creating The New York Community Trust.” The representatives of these financial institutions constitute the Trustees’ Committee, and each bank is authorized to receive funds in trust for The New York Community Trust.
